HOOVER GIVES CONGRESS DRY BODY'S REPORT

Praise For Temperate Work Of Commission Made By Chief Executive.

NO COMMENT ON MIXED ISSUES

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—President Hoover sent to congress today with qualified praise a report from the Wickersham commission which declared against repeal of 18th amendment but put forward a plan for its possible revision.

The president said he concurred in the commission's findings that the amendment should stay and did not recommend any present effort to amend.

He made no direct reference to the fact that six of the members asked for repeal or modification.

Opposes Repeal

The commission's majority report opposed outright repeal of the dry amendment. Two members, Baker and Lemann, advocated that recourse. Four urged revision of the constitutional clause. They were Miss Comstock, Anderson, Loesch and Pound.

The remaining five favored further trial and strict enforcement. They were joined by all the others except Lemann, who did not sign the majority report, in proposing strengthening of enforcement agencies.

The commission opposed return of the saloon or federal or state government going into the liquor business.

The commission agreed that if the 18th amendment is revised the form should empower congress to regulate the liquor question as it sees fit.

No Light Wines or Beer
The commission opposed the Volstead modification to allow light wines and beer. It advocated removal of limitations on how much liquor doctors can prescribe.

"There is yet no adequate observance or enforcement," it said.

No one in official circles at the capitol discounted the probable political effect running far into the future. One subject immediately brought to the front was the possible effect on Mr. Hoover's own political fortunes.

Expressions of opinion regarding 932 were withheld pending a careful study of his statement with the measure. Mr. Hoover described the report as a "temperate and judicial presentation."

More Agents

He emphasized its recommendations for its better enforcement and said he hoped the lawmakers would give them consideration. One outstanding commission proposal was that the number of prohibition agents, now numbering about 1400, should be doubled along with similar extensive increases of personnel charged with making the country dry.

A third clause contemplated action to define more clearly the legal status of homemade wine.

INFLUENZA DOUBLES

PLAN FAIR FOR 1931 IN COUNTY

Elect Officers Of South Mountain Exposition For Coming Year.

The South Mountain fair, cancelled last year on account of the drought, probably will be resumed this year, unless the same conditions in agriculture prevail this year as last.

This was the sentiment of guarantors at their annual meeting at the Arendtsville vocational school, Monday evening. The fair association was reported in a healthy financial condition, and if crops are not ruined again by lack of water another fair will be held at the Arendtsville union park.

The guarantors re-elected the same officers for another year. They include: P. S. Orner, president; G. W. Koser, first vice president; M. E. Knouse, second vice president; A. D. Sheely, secretary; Robert Hoffman, assistant secretary, and S. A. Skinner, treasurer.

The executive committee will meet shortly to formulate tentative plans for the annual fair.

See No Change In Adams-York District

When Pennsylvania is restricted to elect thirty-four instead of thirty-five congressmen, Adams and York counties will be grouped with counties to the best interest of this section. That became certain Monday night when Speaker C. J. Good-nough announced Representative Robert S. Spangler, York, had been named as chairman of the House committee on congressional apportionment. That committee, important only once in ten years, will be in charge of the bill which will decide the counties into a smaller number of congressional districts in accord with the reduced number of representatives allotted the state under the 1930 census.

Mrs. Alex. McSweeney Dies In New Mexico

Mrs. Hattie Baker, York, recently received word of the death of her sister, Mrs. Alexander McSweeney, White Oaks, New Mexico, on Saturday, January 3. Mrs. McSweeney, who was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Homer, was born near Gettysburg. The deceased was eighty-six years old. Mrs. McSweeney and her husband went to New Mexico when her husband, who is a lawyer, was assigned to duty in that section of the country by the national government.

To the Editor of The Times:
Washington, Jan. 20.—Right on top of all our other hard luck Wickersham turned in his report yesterday and that knocked two hundred and thirty-four stenographers who have been compiling it for three years out of a job.
And if Congress reads through it that means an extra session sure.
Yours,
Will Rogers.

William Bolen Is Buried Monday

Funeral services for William Henry Bolen, who died last Friday afternoon at his home in Butler township, were held Monday afternoon, brief services at the home being followed by further services at the Heidersburg Lutheran church, the Rev. J. Harold Little officiating. Interment was at Heidersburg.

LIST SCHOOLS AS ACCREDITED

High School And Academy Recognized As Meeting Requirements.

The Gettysburg academy and the Gettysburg high school are included among 557 public and private secondary schools which have been accredited for 1931 by the commission on secondary schools of the association of colleges and secondary schools of the middle states and Maryland, according to Professor E. Duncan Grizzell, chairman of the commission.

The commission on secondary schools, which maintains a central office at the University of Pennsylvania, functions as a fact-finding and rating agency in the preparation of a list of accredited schools within its territory and serves also as clearing house for information of a professional character concerning these schools.

According to Doctor Grizzell, applications for inclusion on the accredited list may be made by any secondary school in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and the District of Columbia and the Panama Canal Zone, but failure to be included on the list does not necessarily imply inefficiency on the part of the school.

"In acting upon application from school desiring to be placed on the accredited list the commission does not at present assume any responsibility beyond that of judging the ability of efficient secondary schools to prepare its students for college work. Approval by the commission merely means approval for accreditation to college," Dr. Grizzell said.

"Therefore, secondary schools not appearing on the commission's accredited list may be doing work equally satisfactory as those listed, but may be excluded solely because they do not prepare well, or at all, for college entrance. In some instances failure to apply for places on the list is responsible for their omission."

Eight Overcome In York By Gas Fumes

Eight persons, seven of them from one family, were overcome by gas fumes in their homes Monday in York.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Null and their five children, ranging in age from 16 years to nine months, were made seriously ill by coal gas while they were asleep. The parents were in a stupor when they awakened and they collapsed while calling for aid. Neighbors summoned a physician who revived the Nulls and their children.

The timely awakening of her son, Woodrow, saved the life of Mrs. C. F. Crim, 44, who was found unconscious in her apartment, seated beside a gas range with the jets open.

Pinchot Outlines His Program; Hits Utilities As He Takes His Office

Repeats Promise To Abolish Service Commission And Name New Rate Board.

Harrisburg, Jan. 20 (AP)—The full power of the office of governor of Pennsylvania was dedicated today to freeing the government of the commonwealth from "combined machine and public utility control."

Gifford Pinchot, in a 20-minute inaugural address delivered immediately after he took the oath of office as governor, pledged every effort of his administration "to defeat the attack of the public utilities," and "to destroy the corruption upon which the power of the utilities depends."

Reviewing the planks of his campaign platform, the new governor said the people of Pennsylvania have registered their determination to manage their public affairs for themselves. By their decision in the November election, he said, they imposed "upon the new administration and the general assembly, before all other duties, the duty of making and keeping the government of Pennsylvania free from public utility domination."

Abolish P. S. C.
High in the list of platform pledges which the governor said must be redeemed he listed abolition of the present public service commission and substitution of a fair rate board to be elected by districts.

The governor said that the fight against the public utilities was not confined to Pennsylvania but that not a single state in the union was free from the attempt "to substitute government by the public utilities for government by the people."

"I deny the right of this invisible government to exist in free America," the governor said. "I challenge the men who are working for it to come into the open and to acknowledge in plain words that they are attempting to accomplish by secret action. Back of the public utilities in their attack on our American form of government is the whole fabric of political corruption."

Wickersham Commission Backs Up 18th Amendment In Its Report; Minority Report Urges Changes

Prohibition Law Never Fully Enforced, Is Conclusion Of Investigators.

The following are the long awaited conclusions and recommendations of the Wickersham law enforcement commission on prohibition.

"1. The commission is opposed to repeal of the Eighteenth amendment.

"2. The commission is opposed to the restoration in any manner of the legalized saloon.

"3. The commission is opposed to the federal or state governments, as such, going into the liquor business.

"4. The commission is opposed to the proposal to modify the national prohibition act so as to permit manufacture and sale of light wines or beer.

Co-operation Needed

"5. The commission is of opinion that the co-operation of the states is an essential element in the enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment and the national prohibition act throughout the territory of the United States; that the support of public opinion in the several states is necessary in order to insure such co-operation.

"6. The commission is of opinion that prior to the enactment of the bureau of prohibition act, 1927, the agencies for enforcement were badly organized and inadequate; that subsequent to that enactment there has been continued improvement in organization and effort for enforcement.

"7. The commission is of opinion that there is yet no adequate observance or enforcement.

"8. The commission is of opinion that the present organization for enforcement is still inadequate.

Increase Appropriations
"9. The commission is of opinion that the federal appropriations for enforcement of the Eighteenth amendment should be substantially increased and that the vigorous and better organized efforts which have gone on since the bureau of prohibition act, 1927, should be furthered by certain improvements in the Simple Ceremonies Mark Beginning Of Pinchot's Second Term As Governor Of Pennsylvania.

Harrisburg, Jan. 20 (AP)—Gifford Pinchot today was inaugurated governor of Pennsylvania.

A great gathering of citizens saw the tall, slender, gray-haired political warrior sworn in at ceremonies which he sought to keep devoid of ostentation and pomp. In keeping with his desire for a simple and informal inauguration, the veteran campaigner wore the soft, gray, slouch hat so familiar to those who have seen him in his recent "stumping" tours of Pennsylvania.

Like the omission of the usual high silk hat from the heads of the inaugural ceremony participants was the use of the ancient horse-drawn victoria, in which the retiring governor, John S. Fisher, and his successor rode from the executive mansion to the capitol for the induction ceremonies. The carriage was formerly the property of the late William A. Stone, who was governor from 1899 to 1903.

Horse-drawn vehicles were abandoned in inauguration ceremonies in this state after the induction of John K. Tener in 1911, the victorias of the earlier days being replaced with the latest models of the more expensive automobiles.

Takes Oath Of Office

As he took the oath of office, moreover, Pinchot today became the second chief executive who has been elected for two terms in Pennsylvania since the adoption of the constitution of 1873. Not since January 20, 1891, has a governor of the commonwealth been inducted into office for a second term. On that previous occasion, forty years ago today, Robert Emory Pattison, Pennsylvania's last democratic governor, took his second oath of office.

Today's ceremony reversed those of four years ago when Governor Fisher took office and Mr. Pinchot was ending his first term as chief executive. Here, too, was a parallel with the inauguration of forty years ago for James Addams Beaver had

DR. SABY SPEAKS TO LIONS' CLUB

Relates Interesting Customs Of Norway, Monday Night.

The frequency with which people in Norway eat was one of the many interesting customs of the land in which he spent several months studying that Dr. R. S. Saby, professor of economics, at Gettysburg college, told members of the Gettysburg Lions' club at their weekly luncheon meeting in the Hotel Gettysburg, Monday night.

"They have two breakfasts, the first a cup of coffee and a sandwich, when they arise, and the second, a regular breakfast at 9, then several more repeats until the regular dinner at 2 o'clock," Dr. Saby said. He related how another meal is usually eaten at 4 and the regular supper at 8 o'clock with something more to eat before retiring.

That it is a universal custom in Norway, he said, was evidenced by the fact that students could be seen eating sandwiches on the streets at the hours for the lighter luncheons, while stenographers in offices started heating water for coffee during their working hours.

Doctor Saby also told of the political problems of Norway where the labor party, more communistic than anything else, is rapidly increasing its power. The prospect of a revolution is constant in that country, he told the Lions. He said the people are hoping the overturn, when it comes, will be without bloodshed.

File Brief In 18th Amendment Suit

Argue Conventions Should Have Acted And Not Legislatures.

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP)—Counsel supporting the decision of Judge Clark, of New Jersey, holding the prohibition amendment invalid today filed in the supreme court an exhaustive brief to be used tomorrow in presenting their oral arguments.

The brief contended Congress does not have discretion in submitting constitutional amendments to either state legislatures or conventions for ratification but is controlled in deciding whether legislatures or conventions must ratify by the nature of the amendment.

Insisting that the people alone could grant the power conferred on the government by the 18th amendment, counsel asserted it should have been submitted to state conventions instead of state legislatures.

"It is proposed that as soon as practicable, by appropriate action of congress and of the states, the eighteenth amendment be modified or revised as follows:

"The congress shall have power to regulate or to prohibit the manufacture, traffic in or transportation of intoxicating liquors within, the importation thereof into, and the exportation thereof from the United States and all territory subject to the jurisdiction thereof, for beverage purposes."

"Under the proposed amendment as modified, congress would have full power (1) to continue the present system of absolute national prohibition, or (2) to remit the matter in whole or in part to the states, or (3) to adopt any system of effective control. Since greater flexibility is one of the outstanding needs of the present system, this modification should be made even if the policy of absolute national prohibition is to be continued.

"That congress should then create a bi-partisan national commission on liquor control, which should have full power under such laws as congress might enact to regulate and control the manufacture, importation, exportation, transportation in interstate commerce, and also the sale, as and to the extent herein-after stated, of intoxicating liquors of more than one-half of one percentum alcoholic content, for beverage purposes; and to exercise similar regulation and control over alcoholic liquors for other purposes, and of industrial alcohol, to the full extent necessary to render the system

DIES WHILE HE IS PASSENGER ON LARGE BUS

Companion Fails To Notice Demise Until Stop Is Made Here.

HEART ATTACK THOUGHT CAUSE

A dead man rode as a passenger on a Greyhound bus from a point east of Lancaster to Gettysburg, Monday night.

When the bus arrived here at 12:30 o'clock this morning and all passengers were ordered out until the supply of gasoline and oil could be replenished, discovery was made that Samuel O. McLaughlin, 59, of Fort Loudon, was dead.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, who was summoned, said death was due to a heart attack. After questioning other passengers on the bus, the coroner learned that McLaughlin had apparently been stricken some distance east of Lancaster.

Noticed His Pallor

A Negro woman passenger said she noticed an unusual pallor spread over the man's face as he slept after the bus left Philadelphia. At Lancaster, McLaughlin did not awaken when the bus made a brief stop, and the Negro woman touched him and found him cold. She said, however, that she was afraid to notify the other passengers, fearing she might be wrong. McLaughlin went to Philadelphia, Monday, to visit a sister who is ill. At the request of members of his family, McLaughlin was accompanied by David R. Rosenberg, of Pannettsburg, near Fort Loudon, because the former had not been in the best of health.

Rosenberg said both he and McLaughlin fell asleep after the bus left Philadelphia. Rosenberg added that he thought his companion was asleep when the bus stopped in Lancaster and did not disturb him. When Rosenberg attempted to arouse McLaughlin when the bus arrived here and all passengers were ordered out, he discovered that his companion was dead.

Justice Of Peace

McLaughlin, a justice of the peace in Fort Loudon, was in the lumber business there with his son-in-law, C. S. Lawyer.

The body was removed to the Bender funeral home where it was prepared for burial. The body was taken to Fort Loudon this afternoon.

McLaughlin is survived by his widow, two daughters, Miss Gail McLaughlin, a teacher at Rutledge, near Philadelphia, and Mrs. C. S. Lawyer, Fort Loudon. Four brothers and three sisters also survive.

Funeral services will be held on Thursday.

PRISON FARM PLAN TABLED

County Commissioners Hear Suggestion But Take No Action.

The Adams county commissioners took under advisement today a suggestion of District Attorney John P. Butt for a conference of boards of seven other counties in central Pennsylvania to discuss the practicability of establishing a joint industrial workshop and farm for prisoners.

Members of the local board of county commissioners said they desired information relative to the cost of operating similar institutions in other counties of Pennsylvania before they call a conference of commissioners in York, Lancaster, Lebanon, Dauphin, Cumberland, Perry and Northumberland counties, comprising district No. 3, established under a state act of 1917.

None of the counties in district No. 3 has an industrial workshop and farm, but a number of counties in the northwestern part of the state have such institutions, and the cost of operating these will be secured by the commissioners before they call a conference.

BULLETS DEFEAT MT. ST. MARY'S

Mountaineers Make Only 3 Field Goals In Colorless Game.

Gettysburg won its third game of the season Monday night when it defeated Mt. St. Mary's in a game here by a score of 24-12, thus turning the tables on its opponents by a big margin for the first time this season. The game had very little of the spectacular in it, the performance of both teams being anything but polished.

Only one field goal was scored by the visitors during the first half, while Gettysburg had only seven points to its credit at the halfway mark. But three field goals were made by the visiting team throughout the entire game.

Of the prohibition issue, the governor said that it was well-known that he not only believed in enforcing the eighteenth amendment because it is a law but because he is a convinced supporter of the amendment itself.

"This administration will be dry," he added.
Mr. Pinchot promised to make no requests for new taxes and said a concrete plan for relieving unemployment would be laid promptly before the general assembly.

He said the new administration would leave nothing undone to abolish crooked elections. Relief for the farmer he said would be brought about by transferring from their shoulders the tax burden of maintaining 20,000 miles of rural roads to the state.

Find Skeleton Holding Letter To Mother Written In Icy Hut

Edmonton, Alta., Jan. 20 (AP).—The cold Canadian sun was reflected dully from the surface of a dishpan that sat across the bony knees of a young man in a lonely hut at Long Rapids on the Hay river last spring.

"The sun is shining, mother, but I feel so cold," the young man wrote, using the dishpan as a desk. "I can still walk a little, but that's about all. There is no blood in me because I haven't eaten for so long. I haven't seen another human be-

RED CROSS IN APPEAL TO U. S.

Wants To Remain Volunteer Organization, Its Committee Says.

Washington, Jan. 20 (AP).—The Red Cross informed the senate and the country Monday night that it desired to remain a volunteer organization.

"We consider ourselves charged with the responsibility in the drought area; we are meeting the needs and will continue to do so," said a resolution adopted by the central committee.

The statement was made public shortly after the senate had voted by 55 to 27 to give the organization $25,000,000 to carry on relief work in drought areas and other emergency-stricken areas.

The views expressed by the central committee closely coincided with those that have been voiced by President Hoover. James L. Feiser, a vice chairman of the Red Cross, visited the White House shortly before the resolution was made public.

At the same time, the farm board made known that the grain and cotton stabilization corporations would sell their commodities to the Red Cross or any responsible unit of the government on easy terms to enable the agencies to relieve distress.

GIRL KILLS MAN IN MURDER CASE

Shoots Defendant On Trial For Slaying Of Her Father.

Dewitt, Ark., Jan. 20 (AP).—A 17-year-old girl shot to death a man on trial for the slaying of her father in a crowded courtroom here Monday night as the jury was ready to retire with the case.

The girl, Helen Spence, sat on the front seat in the courtroom throughout the day, listening to the trial of Jack Woods, 30, charged with killing her father, Cleo Spence, and throwing his body into White river.

When the jury was ready to take the case the girl leaped from her seat, drew an automatic pistol she had concealed in her clothing, and fired four shots into Word's body. He died fifteen minutes later.

Sheriff's deputies who were in the courtroom at the time took her into custody. She refused to discuss the shooting later, but remained calm.

Put Damper Upon Revelations At Trial Of Movie Secretary

Los Angeles, Jan. 20 (AP).—A judicial damper was placed on the "tell-all" contest between Clara Bow, flimdom's "It" girl, and her secretary, Daisy DeBoe, Monday.

Superior Judge William Doran, presiding over the trial of Miss DeBoe on charges of appropriating $16,000 from Clara's bank account, ruled out "mud-slinging" just before the defendant took the witness stand with the asserted intention of revealing more about the actress' "boy friend" and alleged drinking and gambling.

Session Tepid Affair

As a result, Monday's session was a tepid affair. Under questioning by the defense, Miss DeBoe told of signing checks for a fur coat and dresses she said she had purchased with the approval of Miss Bow.

Various other checks were explained in like manner. The prosecution charges the defendant with drawing the money from Clara's accounts for her personal profit and is guilty of grand theft.

Magician Pulls Last Trick; Shoots Self and His Girl

Atlanta, Jan. 20 (AP).—The "last trick" of Joe Cruz, 30-year-old Filipino amateur magician and butler of Asa G. Candler, Jr., was written into Dekalb county records Monday as the murder of Miss Gladys Frix, pretty 19-year-old stenographer, and his own suicide.

After discovery of the two bodies Sunday in a parked automobile on the Chandler estate, officers found a note in the Filipino's room, scrawled on a child's slate, which said: "This is my last trick and I hope you'll enjoy the performance."

On Cruz's body was found an unsigned note which said: "To whom it may concern: 'We, Gladys Frix and Joe Cruz, are taking our own lives because we love each other but due to the objections of Louise Frix (sister of Gladys) and Mrs. J. T. Clay (grandmother), we cannot find a way to be better together in peace.'"

The coroner's jury, however, discounted the indicated suicide pact since the letter bore no mark from the girl. Testimony before the coroner's jury showed that Miss Frix's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Frix, had forbidden Cruz to call at their home or to see their daughter.

Michael had come to Alberta to attempt to make the trip along the Hay river, in which Burt Faber, German writer, had lost his life the winter before.

EXPOSE LIKELY FROM BIG RAID

Startling Facts Of Gang Control Revealed In Chicago Seizure.

Chicago, Jan. 20 (AP).—Startling and rapidly developing evidence was laid Monday before the special grand jury investigating the alleged three-way partnership of politicians, police and criminals. On the heels of the first tangible information of the alleged buying of promotions in the police department, a mass of underworld records gathered in a raid on a Capone-controlled vice resort was given the jury, records indicating numerous financial transactions between gang lords and their political and police friends.

Most of this evidence was guarded from the public, but enough was disclosed and enough hinted at to indicate possible far-reaching developments.

Operated By Capone Ally

The records were seized in a raid on the Rex hotel, a notorious disorderly house which had been supposedly closed by police order for months. The hotel was operated by Denny Cooney, described by police as one of Al Capone's richest and closest allies.

In the batch of papers that was shown to reporters was a pack of mail sent to Detective James Coleman and Peter Bernacchi at the hotel address. The detectives had been assigned to the Rex hotel neighborhood for years. One of Cooney's financial books had a disbursement item, "Coleman—$57.48." There was a canceled check made out to Bernacchi for $148.50 and signed by Hazel L. Smith, bookkeeper in another Capone resort.

Women's Clothing To Be Masculine, According To Paris

Paris, Jan. 20 (AP).—Broad shoulders, fitted waistlines and skirts twelve inches from the ground are the newest style notes on suits which smart women will wear this spring in what Paris stylists predict will be the greatest tailored-suit season for several years.

The collection of one of the most important tailor-dressmakers shown today exhibits tailored suits with pinched waistlines and occasional belts. Today's show is the first of the couturiers' spring openings.

Notched lapels, semitight sleeves with intricate seamings marked coats which were hip length or seven-eighths. There were many long models which featured a pocket from hem to hips in the back of the coat, while skirts fitted the hips smoothly with fullness of stitched pleats released below the knee.

Blouses featured men's white silk shirting with tailored collars for tailored wear and lace-trimmed georgette blouses for dressier suits. Novelty tweeds and dull monotone woollens of fancy weave were favorite materials, while the most popular colors were chocolate brown, gray blue, green and beige.

OLD BILL ORDERED PAID BY MAGISTRATE

Frederick.—A five-dollar fine and a three-dollar bill fell to the lot of Charles Eaves, near Walkersville, Saturday. The bill was four months old; the fine was administered by Justice Motter. Eaves paid both and was released.

The case followed a collision near the old tollgate on the Walkersville road at dusk September 16, when Eaves' car struck the rear of that of Robert Shipley, this city, as the two cars pulled to the side of the highway to meet an oncoming machine driven by Grayson B. Haller, Jr., this city. Witnesses differed as to whether Shipley or Eaves was responsible for the accident, but Justice Motter held that there was no reason for Eaves, if he had been proceeding with the care he claimed, striking the machine in front of him.

Masked Longing

By Howard Rocky

A Romance of Radio

SYNOPSIS: Aileen Gray becomes a "mystery" singer on the radio when an accident disfigures her, ending her Broadway stage career. Dwight Channing, artist, makes a porcelain mask to cover her scars. But these very scars bring Aileen to try to forget her love for Jimmy Crane, press agent. While Arnold Kronberg, movie magnate, is making advances to Vivienne, Aileen's sister, a masked woman appears and shoots him. He recovers and threatens to accuse Vivienne of the attack unless she admits Aileen was the masked woman. As he suspects, Aileen receives a telegram signed "Adrastela" hinting the sender was the woman who shot Kronberg and threatening to throw the blame on Aileen. Then Kronberg asks for an interview with Aileen, now known only as "Mademoiselle Masque." She grants it, though suspicious of his motives.

Chapter 25

CHANNING SPEAKS PLAINLY

Vivienne's make-up failed to hide the ravages of the hours she had thought would never pass. With no appetite for breakfast, she reached the shop in Chestnut street before its doors were open.

The half-past eight throng of girls, on their way to offices, seemed to glance at her knowingly as they saw her standing there. Now and then the flicker of a smile indicated that a man had formed his own conclusions. Did she look so hard that she was marked—or did she imagine it? It was all unbearable. She saw Channing approaching and gulped back tears.

"I thought things over as I drove," he said. "Unless you'd rather not, you'd better come back with me. Kronberg may not find it out."

Half an hour later Channing's car was speeding along the Roosevelt Boulevard. Vivienne sat in silence and he made no effort to break it. Possibly he sensed her thoughts and thought it better not to intrude on them yet awhile. The whole thing had started so innocently, and had grown into such a muddle, that both of them found it difficult to know where to begin to discuss it. Viv remembered that it was in this car that they had been drenched on Sunday—when the dress that was the nucleus of all that had happened since, had been ruined by the rain. It occurred to Channing that fiery was, perhaps, the basic cause of most of the woes woman had known since Eve first learned that apples were really serpents' eggs.

An hour they spent at a quiet roadhouse served to rest them and soothe their nerves, as well as give Vivienne a chance to tell him just what had happened.

Channing deftly switched the subject. He sketched his plan of Vivienne's going to the studio, so that Aileen could visit with her without their being observed.

"Oh, it would have been ideal—except for what has happened. In fact, I'm not sure that I ought to go to New York at all."

"Where else would you go?" he asked, and Vivienne shook her head.

"I don't know," she said slowly. "Would it make any difference?"

"Of course! Viv, you've got to begin to think of someone besides yourself. Aileen wants and needs you."

Vivienne almost hated him for reminding her of that. For almost an hour they motored on, each again avoiding all efforts at conversation. Then as the car was passing an old fashioned farm, Channing swerved it abruptly through the entrance gates. He ran along the weed-grown road, past a ramshackle barn, and brought the roadster to a stop under a clump of trees.

"What's the matter?" Vivienne asked, surprised at the set of his jaw.

"There's something I'm going to say to you—and I'm going to say it now," Channing answered grimly. "You've behaved like a spoiled kid long enough. I don't mind telling you, frankly, that I'm sick of it!"

She could hardly believe this was Channing, there in the car beside her. The tone from any other man would have thrown her into a panic. Yet the knowledge that it was Channing brought back the old dithering. "Oh, really!" She laughed unpleasantly. It was true that she'd asked him to help her, but she was not proposing to listen to any curtain lecture.

"Yes, really!" he snapped and faced her. "I'm going to ask a few questions—and I want the truth. On the first place—honestly—did you fire that shot at Kronberg?"

"Are you serious in asking that?" She stared at him incredulously. "Can you think that I invented the woman in the mask?"

"No, but Kronberg thinks so—or pretends he does. What I want to know is—did you?"

"Shoot him? Certainly not. And whatever you may think I am—or haven't the courage to be—do you suppose I'd implicate Aileen in order to clear myself?"

"No," he said. "You wouldn't. We'll consider that two answers. Now, did you offer Kronberg—what you once offered me?"

"No!" she faltered and hung her head. "But I—I suppose he thought so."

"Naturally," Channing nodded. "You'd have no right to shoot him—after that admission. But it's evident from your account of what he said last night that he doesn't want you now. I told you once that I didn't myself. No doubt you remember that?"

"I shan't ever forget it!" She looked away from him.

"Well, then don't let your resentment prompt you to give some other man—the impression you gave Kronberg."

Two visitors tomorrow bring Aileen suspense, then pleasure.

INAUGURATION

Pattison both as his predecessor and successor.

While Mr. Pinchot's induction ceremonies lacked much of the pomp and ceremony of other like proceedings, he did not want for vociferous and demonstrative greeting from the thousands of persons who witnessed his return to the state's highest office.

The inauguration formalities got under way at ten o'clock this morning when state police closed all entrances to the capitol and cleared its corridors of all visitors. A half hour later the senate and house of representatives were called to order by their respective presiding officers.

Soon after the senate was convened by retiring Lieutenant Governor Arthur James, a committee of three senators was appointed to advise President Judge William M. Hargest, of the Dauphin county court, that the senate was ready to induct the new lieutenant governor into office.

After delivering his farewell address, Lieutenant Governor James called upon John E. McKirdy, chief clerk of the senate, to read the certificate of election of Lieutenant Governor-elect E. C. Shannon, of Columbia. After the certificate had been read, Mr. Shannon was escorted to the rostrum and was administered the oath of office by Judge Hargest. Then the new lieutenant governor made a brief inaugural address which was followed by action of the senate on Governor Fisher's minor appointments made in the interim since the last session on January 6.

After the senate had notified the house that it was ready to recess and proceed with the inauguration of governor, both branches of the legislature adjourned their sessions for the morning and marched to the rotunda of the capitol to await the arrival of the governor's party.

At 11:15 a. m. Governor Fisher and Governor-elect Pinchot left the executive mansion and were escorted in the venerable victoria by the governor's troop to the capitol. On arriving there the retiring and incoming governors went to the governor's office in the south wing of the building to await the arrival of the governor's party in the reception room of the executive suite.

Fifteen minutes later the party marched to the rotunda where they were joined by the legislators and proceeded to the stand at Third and State streets in front of the capitol. There they were seated in accordance with their rank.

Governor's Party

The governor's party comprised Mr. Fisher and Mr. Pinchot, Senator William H. Earnest, Harrisburg, chairman of the inaugural committee; Chief Justice Robert S. Frazer, of the state supreme court; Lieutenant Governor E. C. Shannon and retiring Lieutenant Governor Arthur H. James; Chief Clerk of the Senate John E. McKirdy; the Rev. Dr. J. W. Claude, of Pittsburgh; members of the inaugural committee, the appellate court members, heads of elective departments, members of the new cabinet and invited guests.

Upon arriving at the stand Mr. Fisher, Mr. Pinchot, Mr. James, Mr. Shannon, Chief Justice Frazer, Chief Clerk McKirdy, the Rev. Dr. Claude and Senator Earnest were seated in the speaker's box while the 104th cavalry band played "Hail to the Chief."

The ceremonies were opened with an invocation by the Rev. Dr. Claude. The certificate of election of Mr. Pinchot was read by Chief Clerk McKirdy and Chief Justice Frazer administered the oath of office to Governor Pinchot.

Return to Stand

At 12:45 p. m. Senator Earnest and Governor Pinchot returned to the stand, resuming their positions in the speakers' box, and the parade began to move from its assembly point on Fisher plaza in the rear of the capitol.

Led by an escort of state motor patrolmen and a platoon of mounted state police, the parade passed around the southern slope of Capitol Hill to Third street and marched northward past the inaugural stand for review by the new governor.

Following him was the chief of staff, Major Stanley M. Livingston, executive officer of the 52nd Infantry Brigade, P. N. G., of which Brig. General E. C. Shannon, the new lieutenant governor, is commanding officer. Then followed the colonels of the three local national guard units.

Behind them were the standards of the 104th cavalry and the 104th cavalry band; the state staff corps, led by Col. Edward J. Stackpole, Jr., the Headquarters company, 56th Infantry brigade; the governor's troop and Battery A, 107th Field artillery completing the first or military division of the parade.

CLARA AND BOY FRIEND IN COURT

Rex Bell, "boy friend" of Clara Bow, helped soothe the film "It" girl's ruffled feelings in Los Angeles court when she heard her former secretary, Daisy De Bae, on trial on grand theft charges, reveal some of the secrets of her home life.

John K. Tener, Edwin Sydney Stuart and the incumbent.

The return of the Pinchot family to the executive mansion also marked the return of a first lady to the state's social category. As Governor Fisher was a widower there was no first lady of Pennsylvania since Mrs. Cordelia Bryce Pinchot left the executive mansion four years ago, although Mrs. Henry Tamm Brown, Jr., of Haverford, Governor Fisher's daughter, who was married in the executive mansion during his first year in office, acted as his official hostess.

As soon as he had pledged himself to uphold the duties of his office, the governor's salute of 17 guns was fired by Battery A, 107th field artillery of the national guard from its position at the foot of State street two blocks west of the capitol and in clear view of those seated on the inaugural stand. Simultaneously with the firing of the salute the governor's flag was unfurled from its standard atop the roof of the speaker's box.

As the last echo of the 17th shot blurred the cacophony of the welcoming shouts of the enthusiastic crowd packed in front of the stand, Governor Pinchot began reading his inaugural address.

Twenty minutes later, on completing the reading of his address, Governor Pinchot and Senator Earnest stepped from the stand into the victoria and, escorted by the governor's troop, passed over the route of the inaugural parade.

After passing the stand and the capitol on Third street, the parade marched toward the business section and circled back to Fisher plaza to disband.

Luncheon Served

When the last marcher had passed Governor Pinchot and his party went to the executive mansion where luncheon was served at 2:30 o'clock. An hour later the governor returned to the capitol where, in the rotunda, he was greeted by the senators and representatives and later by the general public.

The closing event on the inaugural program will be the inaugural ball at the Zembo Mosque at the northern end of the city tonight.

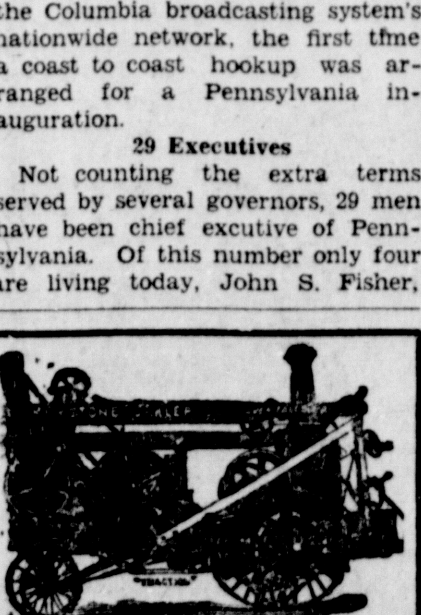

After Governor Pinchot left the stand for the executive mansion, the senate and house again went into session to receive appointments of the new governor including the names of his cabinet selections.

When this business had been disposed of together with several resolutions presented by the members, the two houses adjourned until Monday night. The members then went to the rotunda to greet the new governor.

The proceedings of the inauguration ceremony between noon and 12:30 o'clock were broadcast over the Columbia broadcasting system's nationwide network, the first time a coast to coast hookup was arranged for a Pennsylvania inauguration.

Harrisburg, Jan. 19 (AP).—There was a 40 million dollar bond fire at the capitol here Monday but not a dollar was lost.

At ceremonies attended by Governor Fisher, State Treasurer Edward Martin and Auditor General Charles Waters, $40,000,000 in unissued highway bonds whose maturity dates have expired were burned in the furnace room of the capitol.

At the time $100,000,000 of highway bonds, in 1919, the purchaser was given the option of having registered or unregistered certificates. This necessitated the printing of bonds in excess of the amount required.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery.

But I say unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart.

And if thy right eye offend thee, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

And if thy right hand offend thee, cut it off, and cast it from thee: for it is profitable for thee that one of thy members should perish, and not that thy whole body should be cast into hell.

It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement:

But I say unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery: and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery.

Again, ye have heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shalt perform unto the Lord thine oaths.

But I say unto you, Swear not at all, neither by heaven; for it is God's throne. Nor by the earth; for it is his footstool: neither by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King.

Neither shall thou swear by thy head, because thou canst not make one hair white or black.

But let your communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay: for whatsoever is more than these cometh of evil.

Matthew 5:27-37.

NEW YORK Day by Day

by O.O. McIntyre

New York, Jan. 20.—The opening of a new five and ten cent store these days has taken on a musical show hoopla. It brings out an entire neighborhood in a flurry of excitement. Extra police have to be called. An ambulance stands by. The doors open promptly at 9 a.

m., but by 8 sidewalks in front are bulging with a jostling crowd of bargain hunters. Many unusual values are offered at a premiere and souvenirs are given away. There are clowns to amuse the children.

A huge orchestra render popular selections and in instances the management secures the presence of a movie or stage star or a prize fight celebrity. The whole thing has the expert touch of a professional stage director. Many come in limousines.

Sales girls are beautified to a Tiffany polish. Floor-walkers are in cutaways and buttonholed. The opening I attended on upper Broadway featured a special sale in step-ins. Lavender and pink things were selling like hot cakes at 10 cents a copy.

The perfume counter, too, had a big crush. The favored scent was put up in atomizers and sold for a dime. On opening day many articles are priced far below cost to bring in the crowds for a look-around. Once inside few resist a whack at picking up an arm-load of doo-dads.

Next to the growth of the red-fronted 5 and 10—there are four on 5th avenue now—the greatest mercantile phenomenon in New York is the drugless drug store. One of the largest in Times Square does not sell a single patented medicine or fill a prescription. Yet is always packed.

An amusing touch to the 5 and 10 opening was offered by an early morning drunk all dressed up and no place to go. After lurching around counters he finally buttonholed a floor-walker and hiccuped: "What have you in flowers better than a silly orchid?"

Goody! goody! note from a gossip weekly: "They often pick on a farmer country boy who is a metropolitan columnist for wearing spats but they never sock Will Rogers, the biggest Rube of all, for playing society polo."

Bruce Barton wanted to take a colored servant with him on a sort of handy man on a recent trip to Europe. A day before the departure the servant, a trifle embarrassed, sought out Barton and tempestized: "I sho' would like to go with you all but I'm plum frightened about crossing smack over that rough ocean. Isn't there some way I could just ease around the edges, kinda like?"

Twenty years of knocking around Broadway as a press agent has not disillusioned Harry Reichenbach. "I can," he confesses naively, "look upon a table d'hote chicken croquette with no suspicion whatever."

Fanny Ward is still to be seen where the pleasure seekers gather, especially at benefits. And tails has been a winter of benefits. She confesses to being "past 60" yet remains one of the perky robins of life, winging from New York to Paris and back to Palm Beach. She has the form of a girl of 20, affects a boyish bob and skips about like a bubbling graduate. Her voice is a bit strident and her hands suggest maturer years, but otherwise she upholds her theatrical billing of the "eternal flapper."

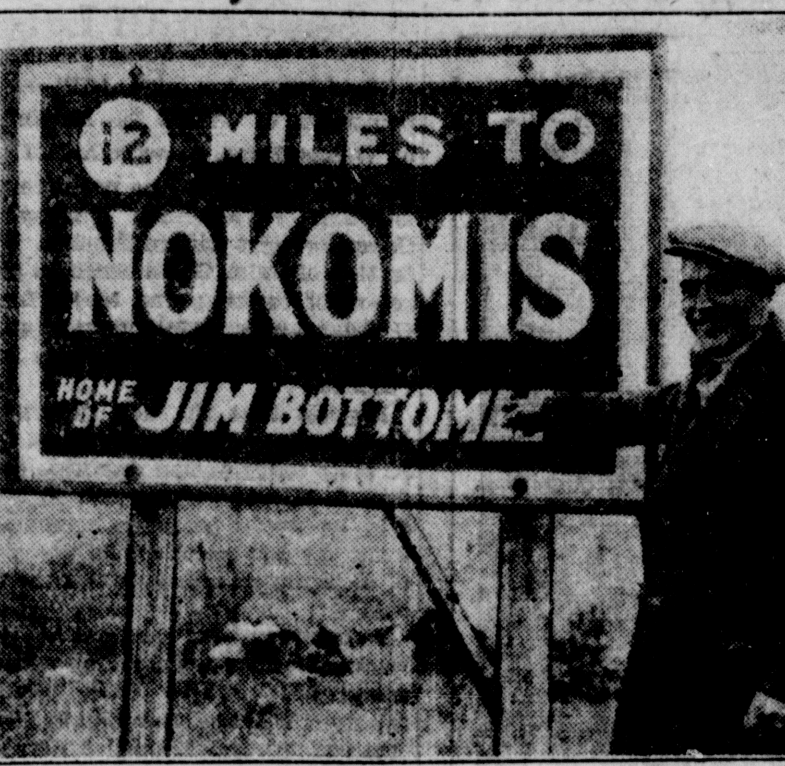

The most youthful looking man for his years it seems to me is Charles King, the actor. I do not know his precise age, but I applauded him in vaudeville when I was in short pants and many think I'm ripe for the ether cone. He has the jovous vigor, clear complexion and jaunty swagger of the collegiate.

Yet somehow I'd as soon look my years. I have a wholesome enthusiasm and respect for even the valedictorianism of old age. There is more fun in the chimney corner rocker than most suspect. Youth is mostly headaches and regrets. I'd rather be the droning house-fly than the stinging young hornet any day. Me and that 156 year old Turk what's his name!

SMILE RETURNS TO 'SUNNY JIM'

"Sunny Jim" Bottomley, St. Louis Cardinal first baseman, has regained his famous smile after a poor year in 1930 and he still is the hero of his home town, Nokomis, Ill. The signboard beside which he is standing proves that.

York Man Attempts Life On Family Plot

York, Jan. 20.—Depressed because he was recently thrown out of employment, Clarence Bogar, 27, Saturday fired two shots into his chest on a lot in Greenmount cemetery, where his parents are buried. It was reported to police.

The shooting was witnessed by A. K. Glatfelter, who was standing nearby. Glatfelter told the police that Bogar fired a third shot with his revolver, but it missed the mark. The would-be suicide is confined to a hospital in a serious condition.

A brother told the police that Bogar spent all of Saturday in the cemetery. He returned home at night and told his brother that he was going back to the grave of his mother and "end it all." William Bare, caretaker at the cemetery, said he saw Bogar in the cemetery early Saturday morning and that he noticed the man loitering around some graves all day.

SUNDOWN STORIES

THE FIRST RAFT
By Mary Graham Bonner

"Well," began the Little Black Clock, "how do you want my magic used for this adventure? Shall I turn the time backward or forward?"

The Little Black Clock never failed the children. He had given up telling the ordinary, regular time so that he could have the magic in his works which made it possible for him to turn it to any other time at all.

"I loved seeing those old ships," John commenced, "but what made them think of going on ships in the first place and who built the first ship of all?"

"You've asked two questions instead of one," laughed the Clock. "But we'll see about both of them." The Clock was turning the time back. In fact, Peggy thought he was turning it back almost to the beginning of the world, but he told her he hadn't turned it back quite that far.

"I've turned it back more than I did when we took our trip with those first sailors—the Phoenicians—however."

They were standing now by a stream and a boy was riding on an old tree trunk and had asked his friends to ride on it, too. The current of the stream was carrying them along and they were having a beautiful time.

"This boy who is too busy with his games to tell us his name is the first one to discover that one can ride on the water," the Little Black Clock explained.

"After this people will take old rafts and visit their neighbors. Then they will build larger rafts and carry animals and things they wish to trade.

"But you have seen the first person who has taken a ride on the water. It's a good thing to play games and have a good time," the Clock ended gayly. "Yes, I've always said it was most important—and you see, here, what it is going to mean to people through the

MAN KILLED IN GARAGE BY FUMES

Fear Foul Play After Body Is Discovered Early Sunday.

Philadelphia, January 19.—Dying from carbon-monoxide poisoning, Harry C. Burns, 24, well-to-do resident of Riverton, New Jersey, was found in his garage Sunday morning under circumstances which indicate a mysterious murder.

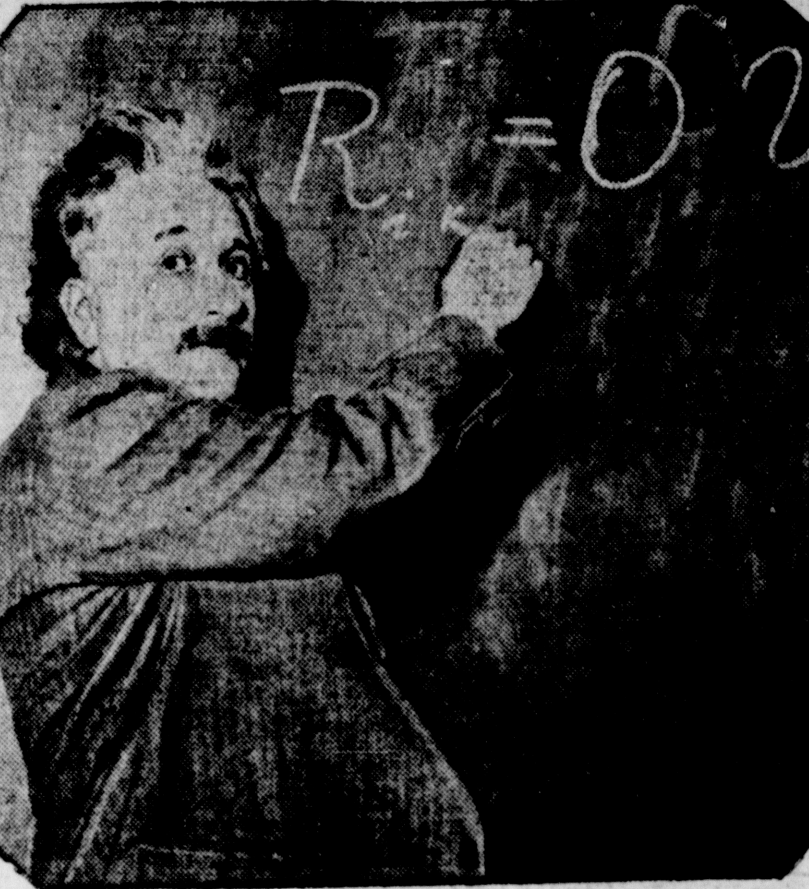

The man's clothes were torn and soiled, his pockets were opened out, his empty wallet lay in one corner, his key ring on the floor, and he himself was sprawled almost directly under the exhaust pipe of his auto automobile when found.

It has been definitely established that he lay on the garage floor from 1:40 a. m., when he returned home, until 7:30 a. m., when he was found by his uncle, Harry C. Sim, assistant manager of the Drer Nurseries, Riverton, with whom he lived.

Fresh air entering through the side door of the garage, partly opened, is believed to have kept him alive all night. The engine of the car was still running at 7:30 a. m.

The victim, who had lived all his life in Riverton, was described by friends as a clean-cut youth, very highly regarded in the community. At Palmyra high school, from which he was graduated at the age of 18, he played football, and took an active part in student life. He was employed in the nursery of which his uncle is assistant manager. He was accustomed to carry between $50 and $100 in his wallet, his uncle said.

NEW BILLS GIVE MAN HUGE POWER

No One Would Have Right To Sell Grain Futures In United States.

By Frank L. Weller

Washington (AP).—The secretary of agriculture would have the powers of an absolute monarch in the futures market under the Capper and Dickinson bills to regulate grain exchanges.

In the first place, no person in the United States could handle or execute orders for future delivery unless the secretary gave him that authority.

The bills require that all commission merchants, brokers and correspondents be licensed or not allowed to trade. Any license could be revoked for cause.

Subject to Approval

Once licensed to trade, the individual would find every move he made subject to the secretary's approval.

In effect, the whole fabric of futures trading would be subjected to the personality, intelligence and private convictions of one man.

Traders have voiced objections to such control of their fortunes by a public official.

Peter B. Carey, a vice president of the Chicago board of trade, says additional federal restrictions might result in the exchange closing. Under the present system exchanges make their own rules.

Stabilization Criticized

Carey charges that because of the government's wheat stabilization policy the volume of futures trading has been greatly reduced.

In defense of stabilization, Chairman Legge, of the farm board, says that March and May wheat retain their value while July wheat and corn futures, both open to speculation, have suffered deflation.

Legge says he doesn't believe the exchanges are going to close if new restrictions are added, but that elimination of short selling probably will become necessary because of the "impossibility of regulating such sales satisfactorily to prevent market manipulation."

Raise Standards For Teachers In Many Communities

Washington (AP).—An over-supply of teachers has led to more exacting requirements for entrance to teacher-preparing institutions, the national education association reports.

A number of cities and states now require a minimum of three years above high school for certification of teachers.

Greece Bars Children From Foreign Schools

Athens (AP).—Fearing that thousands of Greek children were learning to speak foreign languages better than their own, the senate has passed a law prohibiting native pupils from attending foreign schools until they have passed the sixth grade.

The only exception were the three American schools which alone were found living up to regulations for instruction in Greek.

There are 46 primary and secondary foreign schools in Greece, 23 French, 18 Italian, three American and two German. They have 9,390 pupils.
